1. Nationalist guerrillas have been advancing toward the Patushang (八都山) area, Nanan (118-31, 24-56).
2. By 9 September 200 Nationalist guerrillas who landed on the Fukien coast on 6 September were spread out, with most of them in the vicinity of Huian (118-48, 25-03); some of them were advancing toward Yungt'ai (118-53, 25-47). Elements of the Chinese Communist 5 Garrison Regiment were encircling a group of 20 guerrillas in the area south of Talochi (118-35, 25-15). There are elements of the 5 Garrison Regiment at Fengt'ing (118-50, 25-13).
3. On 11 September 30 guerrillas of a group which landed on 6 September were proceeding from the Hungyen (洪岩) area toward Hsienyu (118-41, 25-21). According to a Chinese Communist officer at Hsienyu, the morale of Chinese Communist troops there is low.
4. Chinese Communist military authorities in Hsienyu have notified Chinese Communist troops in that area of the following:
  - a. In early September 100 Nationalist guerrillas were killed or captured in the Hsienyu area and a large number of carbines and tommy guns were captured from the guerrillas.
  - b. Nationalist guerrillas are spread out in the mountains near Ssuchiots'ing (四角亭), Hsienyu, and are being attacked by Chinese Communist troops.
  - c. The main mission of troops in the Hsien area is to suppress Nationalist guerrilla activities.
  - d. Local militia and civilians will be organized to defend the Hsienyu area from Nationalist guerrillas.
5. Casualties of Nationalist guerrillas who landed on the Fukien coast were 30 killed and 22 captured between 6 and 12 September during battles with Communist troops in the Hungyen area.

6. According to the Chinese Communist Chinchiang Military Sub-District Command, guerrillas who landed on 6 September had suffered 110 casualties by 14 September but were still continuing to fight in the Hsienyu area.
7. In mid-September a Communist unit was planning to adjust the positions of its troops in the area south of Foochow to prevent guerrillas from proceeding north from the Hsienyu-P'ut'ien area.
8. A Chinese Communist officer, LI (李), who was directing operations against guerrillas in the Hungyen area, left on 12 September to attend a conference at the headquarters of the Chanchiang Military Sub-District Command. During his absence, CHU (朱) is directing operations against guerrillas in the Hungyen area.
